Tourism increasing this summer

Even with gasoline shortages

Even with a reported nationwide gasoline shortage, tourism is booming in Canyon this summer.

With just a month left in the traditional tourist season, local businessmen and officials connected with recognized tourist attractions say it's been a good summer so far.

Officials are hoping that the $6 million figure which the chamber of commerce says tourists left in Canyon last summer will climb even higher as local attractions receive region-wide and nation-wide recognition.

Local reports indicate that the area's two main attractions, Palo Duro Canyon State Park and the musical-drama "TEXAS" are booming.

"TEXAS," the drama of Panhandle history which plays under the stars in Palo Duro Canyon, has passed the mid-point mark of its 8th season and the musical is drawing about 10 per cent more viewers this summer than ever before.

"TEXAS" publicist Margaret Harper reports that more than 45,000 persons have seen Paul Green's award-winning outdoor production this summer.

Increasingly, she notes, audience members are coming from farther and farther away to see the show.

More than half the audience this summer has reported homes more than 500 miles from Canyon.

Bankers from Mexico, beef producers from Australia and travel writers from throughout the country have seen "TEXAS" this year.

Canyon's two largest motels report the majority of their business this summer has been in connection with "TEXAS."

A spokesman for the Lexington Motor Inn, which was just under construction last summer and thus not open to put travelers up for the night, reports that the motel is full every night.

"Ninety per cent of them are going to 'TEXAS'," she said.

Only a few of the Lexington's visitors have been simply passing through.

Ted Smith, owner of the Trail Motor Hotel on U.S. 87, gives a similar report.

"Most of them are definitely going to the play 'TEXAS'," he said.

Smith said most of the license plates on visiting cars are issued by Texas with a good many of his visitors coming from San Antonio, Dallas and Fort Worth, Houston and Austin.

While "TEXAS" may be the big attraction for tourists to the Canyon area during the summer, Elon Baker, superintendent of Palo Duro Canyon State Park, says there's been an increase in the number of persons who've come to the giant canyon this summer.

Although he has no definite figures to back up his feeling, Baker said activity has increased in the canyon this summer.

About 450,000 persons came to Palo Duro Canyon for various reasons last year.

Figures indicating the number of persons who have visited the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum this year reveal a slight decrease through June 30.

About 40,000 persons have visited the museum through the first six months of the year compared to 41,000 who visited during the same period of 1972.

But, a museum spokesman said July appears to be a month for heavy visitor traffic and when the figures are tallied should shove this year's figures above last year's.

Beef on the hoof at Randall County feedyard . . . here or in supermarket?

Beef shortage is predicted here

Canyon housewives can prepare for a smaller selection of beef and maybe even no beef at all in the coming weeks in local grocery stores, according to predictions by local grocers and cattle feeders.

The Phase 4 price freeze still in effect for beef is expected to spur the meat shortage.

Hoarding of beef, already occurring here, is also expected to speed the shortage.

Wayne Bedwell, manager of the large Happy Wheat Growers Feedlot south of Canyon, flatly predicts that consumers across the nation will find empty red meat shelves as early as this weekend.

"It'll be worse next weekend," he said. "Amarillo may not be out of beef but the other population centers around the country will be out of beef this weekend."

Local grocers, who stressed they have no factual data on which to base an opinion, predicted beef will be in short supply.

"I bet it'll be short but I have nothing concrete to go on," said one grocer. "The people (packers) I talked to today said they didn't buy cattle past next week."

He said he is unable to purchase more beef than he has been buying in the past, while the demand for beef is increasing.

"I tried to stock up and they wouldn't let me have any more than I've been buying," he said.

One local grocery said residents are already beginning to hoard beef in anticipation of a shortage.

He said he has received orders for large quantities of beef from many more persons than usually place such orders. He is unable to fill them, he said.

One grocer said residents may have to settle for buying a different cut of beef they don't usually purchase.

He was more optimistic that beef will remain in the counters.

"They may have to take a cut of meat they aren't used to taking as far as, say, a roast, because there's only so many you can get off one cow," he said.

An unpredictable market, a market which sees packers unable to purchase beef because of the prices demanded by feeders, has spurred the beef shortage.

Dr. Charles Smallwood, dean of the school of agriculture at West Texas State University, explained the problem:

The cost of feed has made it mandatory for cattle feeders to demand a certain price for cattle. Without the price freeze inaugurated by President Nixon, packers would purchase the cattle at that price and sell the beef to grocers. Thus prices would rise.

Under the price freeze, however, the price of feed is still high and cattlemen are demanding a certain price for their cattle.

The packers, though, are unable to sell the beef to grocers at a price above a specified ceiling under Phase 4 and are thus unable to pay high prices for the cattle from the feeders. They can't afford to purchase the beef at the price demanded and sell it at the price commanded.

Smallwood said most packers are able to pay between $44 and $45 per hundred-weight for cattle.

Cattlemen won't sell their cattle for that price.

Predicting fall WT enrollment tricky business, officials say

Prediction is, at best, a risky business, and officials at West Texas State University are having nothing to do with predictions this summer as they ponder the potential enrollment next month for the fall term.

There was a time three or four years ago when officials would hazard a guess at their expectations for the fall term enrollment, but even guesses are closely held this summer.

With enrollment less than a month away, officials are eyeing various historical indicators, but they say the indicators have either proved inaccurate in the past or are too nebulous this summer to allow for even ball-park estimates.

The fall term begins in late August under a new university president, Dr. Lloyd I. Watkins, who has pledged that his first priority is to attempt to increase lagging WTSU enrollment.

But, until the closing days of registration, nobody'll know how much of a job he faces to carry out his vow.

"I wouldn't even guess," declares Dr. Donald Cates, registrar and dean of admissions. "I don't know where we're going to be."

Likewise, Dr. T. Paige Carruth, vice president for student affairs, says his indicators have proven unreliable and backs off from positive prognostication.

Cates said there are several factors this year which make prediction a tricky business.

One factor, he said, is the record wheat crop which Panhandle area farmers reaped this summer.

"The economy of our area has always been a factor for the institution," he said. "I have observed that there's a direct correlation between the economic strength of the Panhandle and our enrollment."

While the massive wheat harvest may have put extra money in area farmers' pockets thus strengthening the overall economy of the area, and while that extra money could be the factor in sending a student to WTSU, Cates also recognizes that that extra money could send a student to Texas Tech or the University of Texas.

Another factor which affects college enrollment, says Cates, is part-time student attendance.

WTSU has been hurt, the registrar said, in the past by increased fees for part-time students.

In fact, a decline in enrollment last fall for part-time students was attributed in large measure to an increase in the tuition charged to students taking fewer hours than required for a full load.

Part-timers face an increase in tuition again this fall as a result of legislative action taken last spring in Austin.

Students taking just three hours, for example, face an increase of $28.50.

Cates said traditionally WTSU has a high percentage of part-time students.

A positive factor cited by Cates is new degree programs offered this fall, programs such as criminal justice, public administration, social work and others.

Another factor will be the availability of jobs for college graduates.

"The job market is not too hot, but it is better than a year ago and not as good as in 1969," Cates said.

In addition to these special factors, Cates said other factors

Prof sees power clash over Cambodia bombing

While the quagmire of Watergate has drawn President Nixon into what some observers have termed a constitutional crisis, a West Texas State University professor believes a federal judge's declaration last week that continued bombing in Cambodia is unconstitutional will pose a similar problem.

Dr. Brent Lynch, professor of government at WTSU, recently published an article relating to war powers in the Constitution in the Texas International Law Review.

He believes the decision made by U.S. District Judge Orrin Judd of New York could prove a crucial showdown in the continuing battle between Congress and the President for power.

In this case the power at stake is the power to wage undeclared war, wars like Vietnam.

Lynch, who holds both doctorate and law degrees from the University of Utah, said the federal judge's action marks "the first time the judiciary has taken a stand on the situation in Southeast Asia."

In the past, federal courts have refused to hear cases dealing particularly with the war in Vietnam.

Now, says Lynch, the Supreme Court is in a position where it must rule on the war power of the Presidency.

While the point may appear on the surface to be moot since Congress has already voted to cut off funds for bombing in Cambodia after Aug. 15, Lynch says the point is highly important because on whatever decision the nation's highest court renders rests the future ability of the President to carry out military actions without Congressional approval.

Lynch said the federal judge ruling has made it mandatory that the Supreme Court interpret the Constitution in light of Presidential power.

If the highest court refuses to hear the case, the ruling by Judge Judd remains. If the court sustains the judge's ruling, the Presidential powers to wage war are restricted. If the court reverses the judge's ruling, Congress' power to wage war is restricted.

Lynch said a 1789 decision left the power to go to war in the hands of the people with the President allowed to repell sudden attack.

In referring to government attorneys' arguments that Congress, in effect, knew all along about the bombing and tacitly approved it, Lynch pointed to recent national disclosures of secret bombing missions in Cambodia.

"This is a long sustained action not disclosed to the public or Congress," he said, "and it should not be tolerated."

Lynch favors limiting the

One thing's predictable: housing will be tight

While student enrollment at West Texas State University may be unpredictable, local officials are not hesitant to say flatly that housing for prospective students and new faculty members in Canyon and on campus will be tight this fall.

Their prediction is not new, and one which has proven accurate for the past few summers as married students flock to the city only to find no available living room.

While construction is booming in Canyon, the new houses are not expected to dent the student flood significantly for economic reasons.

Roland Black, manager of the local chamber of commerce, has become a semi-official housing office for students and faculty members looking for a place to live during recen tyears.

He foresees tight housing again this school term.

"The demand has kept up with the housing," he said.

Black said he was able to find housing for proportionately more students last summer than in other previous years but he said that student letters have already started coming into his office concerning housing.

Demand seems to be great, he said, for three-bedroom houses.

"And, I can't find any," he noted. "I'm getting a lot of demand for rental houses."

While many houses have been constructed in the city since last summer, students are not able to afford them and there has been no appreciable increase in the number of apartment units available or the number of rental houses available.

"It looks like it'll be tight in the fall," he said.

Black is already preparing for a surge of student queries which he believes will begin pouring in in about two weeks.

Dr. T. Paige Carruth, vice president of WTSU for student affairs, said all dormitories on the campus are filled by reservation except two men's dorms, Jones and Stafford Halls.

He said waiting lists have been established for the women's residence halls.

Carruth expects both men's dorms which now have room to be filled by the start of the fall term.

A new law which gives 18-year-olds majority rights in Texas is not expected to affect the university's housing policy, Carruth said.

Anticipating passage of the bill by the Texas legislature, university officials changed their housing policy last year to remove age requirements.

As it now reads, all students regardless of age who are freshmen, sophomores or juniors are required to live in campus housing unless excused by officials.

WT student defends adult movie operations

By ANN MELIN

About two and a half years ago, two West Texas State University students, one a pre-law major, the other a pre-med student, found they could help finance their college education by working for an Amarillo adult film theatre. The pay was good. So were the hours. And while the two 16-mm projectors were running, the two boys found they could spend the time conversing, reading and studying for exams.

On Wednesday, several reels of movie film were confiscated from the Mini-Vue Adult Cinema, after being declared obscene by Justice of the Peace Cliff Roberts. On the previous Tuesday evening, Amarillo policemen kept an all-night vigil in the movie house after serving papers on Jackie Joe Swanson, the 22-year-old WTSU student working as an employee in the theatre. All subsequent papers filed on the theatre, were also served on the Dalhart sophomore.

"When my friend and I went to work there after we'd had a lot of trouble finding a job, he feared something like this would happen. He quit because he was afraid it might hurt his chances to get into pre-med school later on. But I stayed on," said Swanson, who will again be enrolled in the School of Business at WT next fall.

No charges have been filed on the Theatres of America, Inc., the company that operates the Mini-Vue, but should the case ever reach the courts, it will be the first to be tried under the new obscenity rulings of the Supreme Court.

Swanson said he objects to the new ruling, which vests in the local community the legal right to judge whether or not the content of a film is "obscene."

"Personally, I feel that if a person is of legal age and wants to do something not harmful to others, he ought to be able to do it. I think the First and Fourth Amendments were intended to guard this right. I don't see how the government can justify restricting them from it," said Swanson.

Registration set Aug. 20 for locals

Registration procedures for Canyon school-age children begins Monday, Aug. 20, according to dates released this week by the Canyon school district.

During the morning Aug. 20, kindergarten and elementary children with last names beginning with A through K, seventh graders and sophomores in high school are to register.

That afternoon, kindergarten and elementary children with last names which begin with L through Z, eighth graders and juniors in high school are to register.

Ninth graders and seniors in high school register during the morning Aug. 21.

First day of school is Aug. 22.

The Canyon school district this year goes to a quarter system format with three quarters during the regular nine-month school session.

First holiday under the system

Don't Expect Perfection

By ANN BROWN

"The perfect wife," according to George Sanchez the marriage counselor, "is one who does not expect a perfect husband."

The wife who does expect a perfect husband is in for a disappointment, and probably a fast trip to the divorce court.

Perhaps it is Hollywood glamour, but something has beguiled the last two generations of young lovers into believing that marriage is an unending love affair in a vine-covered cottage.

But when the vines wither, the roof begins to leak, and the cottage gets disordered and dirty, disillusionment sets in.

Then when babies and bills absorb all available time and money, there comes a loud cry of "foul."

An engaged girl usually thinks of diamonds, and hopes to get a good stone. But, the stone that will influence her life most is probably the grindstone.

Life is mostly dull routine relieved by occasional flashes of joy. To expect otherwise is unrealistic.

Recently a mother of four small children divorced a man whom she readily admitted was a faithful hardworking husband, and a good father. After 15 years, she said the "romance" had gone out of her marriage, and she was bored.

What is boredom compared to the broken hearts of four children and their father?

According to statistics published last week, there were 170,000 children adopted in the U.S. in 1972. And 60,000 racially mixed, handicapped, and other hard-to-place children were still needing homes.

What became of the parents of those 230,000 children?

How many more hundreds of thousands of children are being torn between warring parents, dumped on the mother to support, or farmed out among relatives?

At least one out of every six homes in Texas is reportedly a one-parent home. Is it surprising that there are so many maladjusted people around?

Children are prone to follow the pattern set before them. How can a boy who grows up in a fatherless home know how a husband and father is supposed to conduct himself?

How can a girl who grows up in a home without a father know how a wife should treat her husband?

According to the Journal of Social Hygiene, "No nation has ever educated through formal channels so many of its young people for marriage as has the United States and no people have ever had so high a rate of marriage failure."

That simply adds to existing evidence that children are more likely to follow parental examples than any advice they may get at home or at school.

One strange contradiction is that the more unhappy the home the child grows up in the more anxious he is to marry. And the children whose parents fight continually seem to be most convinced that marriage will solve all their problems.

Marriage like any other close relationship requires a high degree of mutual toleration.

An old colored mammy gave her young mistress some sage advice on selecting a husband: "Honey, you might as well pick out one that you likes his face, 'cause under the skin they is all alike."

A famous novelist said of her three divorced husbands: "Men are all different, but husbands are all alike." That was her way of saying that men react according to the way their wives treat them.

But some women work so hard trying to make good husbands they don't have time to make good wives.

Sometimes husbands and wives are forced to be frank with each other. But they had better be sweet about it. Wounded vanity is fatal to love. It makes one hate the person who inflicts the wound. In marriage as in surgery, the knife should be used with caution — or not at all.

On his golden wedding anniversary, Henry Ford was asked the secret of his successful marriage. "The formula is the same as the one used to make a successful car," said Ford. "Stick to one model."

After all, what assurance does anyone have that the second, third, or fourth mate will be any nearer perfection than the first?

Letter to the Editor

CISD Hair Policy Hit

To the Members of the Canyon School Board:

I will state now that I realize this letter will not (and probably never will) help the pitiful shape the Canyon dress code is in thanks to you men.

Two years ago the students of C.H.S. received a memo entitled "Canyon Independent School District Student Dress Code." The one main idea read as follows: "The purpose of the student dress code at Canyon High is intended to support the following factors. A. To assist in maintaining an educational climate in which teaching and learning can take place free of disruption caused by distracting forms of dress and/or grooming which have veered far from the established norm."

Since this memo was handed out, the only "so called" disruptions have come from male students who's fathers make them wear their hair like men did 9 or 10 years ago! This is no joke. Anyone of you men can ask a student of C.H.S. what is more disrupting, a guy who prefers to wear his hair in current fashion (as teenagers down through history for some strange reason always have) or a guy who wears his hair like men did 10 years ago. The latter will always prevail in being more humorous, therefore far more distracting.

My mother, an art teacher at Horace Mann Jr. High, told my family that since the Amarillo School Board changed their hair policy from boys hair being so long in front and so long in the back and so long on the sides, the teachers haven't had to waste their time telling "John Doe" to get a haircut and have the class snicker and giggle for two or three minutes for fear of the assistant principal coming in during the middle of class and telling a couple of guys to get their haircut by tomorrow or else, and having the class laugh about it for awhile. (This, by the way, happened all the time at Canyon High). And strangely enough there hasn't been a case of rape, murder or selling of Heroin since these bunch of (as you put it) "long haired hippies who wanna throw over the government!" have been walking the halls of the Amarillo schools. Then you'll probably say "Yeah, but look at all this terrible stuff those kids do when they're outside of this school!" Check with the Canyon Police Force and you'll find they pickup just as many short-haired cowboys for drinking and causing trouble as they do us long-haired weirdos.

In your 8-19-73 Canyon News issue, an article concerning the recent school board session, stated Richard Pruitt as saying that the coaches and band or choir directors should take on the responsibility of making sure a guy's hair is the right length so as not to "disturb" the classroom. I know from experience that your coaches and directors wouldn't cere if a guy's hair were to the shoulders, so long as he has signed up for athletics or band and choir to give his best at his chosen subject. Pruitt also said that the Canyon Eagles Basketball team was the "raggediest" bunch of athletes he had seen. Assistant Principal McAlpine then said that the Perryton track team looked "worse" than the Eagle Basketball team. Perryton won the district meet by 30 points, Mr. Pruitt, pretty good for "Heaven forbid!" raggedy athletes.

In closing I'll remind you that 1. the teachers just want to teach and not play nursemaid and, 2. judging a man by the length of his hair is exactly like judging a man by the color of his skin. Or do you find my thinking wrong with that?

Poverty At $42,500 A Year

By CARROLL WILSON

There's no doubt the Associated Press reporter who wrote the story wanted to elicit the kind of response he elicited from me.

There was the story on page one — Tower Says He'll Get By On $42,500.

My initial reaction was one of disgust. That poor John Tower, I said. My heart really bleeds for him.

The story was designed for that kind of reaction.

Quoting the story, which quotes Sen. Tower: "It is tough. It is hard. We are underpaid."

The story quotes Tower as being for a delay in a wage hike for Congressmen while at the same time complaining about how tough life is at that salary.

"It will hurt me because I have three teen-age daughters and they do not go to school free and they do not get their clothes free. It costs me a great deal of money. I am delighted to spend on them, including a Neiman-Marcus charge account."

I'm certainly not defending Sen. Tower. I have no doubt he said what he's quoted as saying.

I feel no raise is justified for Sen. Tower or any of his fellow congressmen.

U.S. News and World Report goes into some depth in their current number to point out how much congressmen make and what their fringe benefits are worth.

While I hate to see Sen. Tower's words quoted out of context, I hate to see him given a raise for any reason. I simply can't sympathize with him.

Sen. Tower, for example, is entitled to rent-free office space not only in Washington but in Texas. He has free mailing privileges for official business, more than 300 hours of free long-distance phone calls, a telegram allowance, a stationery allowance, at least 18 free round trips home to Texas each year, up to $3000 a year tax deduction for living costs in Washington, free parking, free emergency medical care, free haircuts, free flowers and on and on.

Sorry, Senator, but some people may think you're overpaid as it is.

Now, the people who I am certainly in sympathy with are those elected representatives we in Texas send to Austin to do our business.

They are barely paid a living wage — $4800 per year.

Stories emanate from various news media sources about legislators sleeping in their offices because they can't afford to live in Austin on their salaries, stories of bright young legislators forced to give up and not seek re-election because they can't afford to lose time from their jobs for virtually no pay.

State Sen. Max Sherman outlined the problem in a recent speech in Canyon. Fringe benefits for state legislators are few. They have inadequate staffing. They receive $12 per day during the just over 100 days of session and they are paid a small allowance to get to and from Austin at the opening and closing of the session.

Something must be done to increase the salaries of our representatives in Austin.

It is ironic that we of the Panhandle, who are professedly more inclined to keep government close to the people, declined to raise salaries last November. We of the Panhandle who believe that state government should not be usurped by federal government did not support the salary hike for legislators. Yet, by our silence salaries for representatives in Congress go up and up.

John Ehrlichman's ethical and moral code scares me to death.

That he looks upon a political opponent as an enemy is obvious.

Erlichman's testimony before the Senate Watergate committee about his personal political philosophy matches anything John Mitchell could ever have said about the White House horrors.

* * *

McGovernites are rubbing my nose in it these days over Watergate.

"What would you have thought a year ago," asked one, "if I'd told you this country would elect a man President under whose administration you'd see a complete turnover in cabinet members, indictments against several high-level officials, the end of the Vietnam War, virtual complete loss of credibility of the Presidency, a constitutional battle between the Congress and the President and the tarnishing of the FBI and the CIA?

"You probably would have thought that descriptive of George McGovern."

It wasn't was it?

Still nothing to report on the home front. I've lost all confidence in old wives' tales, farmer's almanacs, palm readers, weathermen, horoscopes and doctors.

WT . . .

must be taken into account — such as the decline in enrollment in high schools in the Panhandle area.

All the factors, he says "would make any prediction a shot in the dark."

Carruth says that a factor which he and Cates had for years relied upon as an accurate indication of coming enrollment has been debunked in recent years.

That factor is student housing on campus and in Canyon and the numbers of applications received for room reservations in residence halls.

In the past, Carruth said, he believed there was a correlation between the rate of occupancy in dormitories and the fall enrollment picture.

The recent decline in enrollment has proved the belief wrong, he said.

"I've about decided there's not much correlation between housing and enrollment," he said.

Carruth said enrollment has been declining since 1970 and yet demand for student housing on campus and in Canyon has not abated. The dormitories remain full and Canyon housing in apartments and houses remains tight.

Nevertheless, Cates and Carruth say some of their factors are remaining constant for this summer.

While they won't speculate on what that stability means, Cates says applications for admission to WTSU are coming to his office at a rate about equal to last year and Carruth presents figures which indicate that reservations for on-campus housing are likewise coming in at a rate equal to last summer.

"I'm well pleased with the way applications are coming in," Cates said.

Carruth said 1068 women students have written to reserve rooms in campus dormitories for the fall. This number represents a slight increase over the same priod last year.

Just over 700 men students have reserved rooms in the dormitories, again about the same number as applied for reservations last summer.

Enrollment at WTSU reached a high of 7935 students in 1969 and has steadily declined since that time.

Last fall, enrollment stood at about 6500 students.

Tourism . . .

One attraction which wasn't around last summer, Buffalo Lake Wildlife Refuge, may not draw much tourist trade, but through the early part of the summer it drew more than 30,000 persons a month.

Local service station operators report their summer trade is brisk and, in fact, better than last summer, in spite of the alleged shortage of gasoline.

While many stations are receiving gasoline based on their usage last year, they say they are serving many tourists.

The Canyon Board of City Development prior to the summer created two brochures for distribution primarily through service stations to tourists.

One station reported all the brochures have been given to tourists seeking directions or attractions.

"Not all are stopping to buy gas," one station manager said. "They're asking where things are."

Another service station owner said "if it weren't for rationing I'd have the best year I've ever had."

Beef . . .

Smallwood said many feeders are holding their cattle and refusing to sell at this time. Many, he said, won't sell until after the price freeze is lifted on Sept. 12.

The dean traced the current problems in the nation's beef industry to the shortage of grain spurred by massive sales of wheat and grain to foreign countries.

He predicted the situation will ease somewhat after the freeze provided a good grain crop is harvested in the fall.

Bedwell, who has managed the Happy feedlot for more than a year, said this week he is not holding any of his cattle. Rather, he said, he is selling cattle at the highest price he can remember — about $50 per hundred-weight.

Probably, Bedwell said, the cattle he's selling are going to packers who just started business primarily to usurp the government's Phase 4 guidelines which only applied to packing houses with a history to base the price freeze on.

He says he won't hold any cattle but will continue selling as long as the price remains good.

Bedwell agreed that packers cannot afford to purchase his cattle, but explained that newly-organized packing houses are one way to get around the Phase 4 rules.

"We're selling for all we can get," he said.

Bruce Lusk, manager of Randall County Feedyard, the county's largest, said he too is selling and not holding cattle from the market.

"We're offering them for sale and trying to get all we can," he said.

Cases Filed Up 3%

The number of cases filed in district courts in Randall County during 1972 was 3 per cent more than the number filed during 1971, according to statistics released by the Texas Civil Judicial Council.

Cases filed during the last calendar year totaled 973, including 94 criminal and 879 civil.

Judge E.E. Jordan of the 47th District Court and Judge Don Dean of the 181st District Court have jurisdiction in Randall County.

The local district courts disposed of 1,019 cases during 1972, 68 per cent of the cases filed during the year or carried over from 1971. At the end of the year, 486 cases were pending on the docket.

In the disposition of criminal cases, 38 cases filed in both courts were dismissed prior to trial.

Of 86 total dispositions of cases, 41 cases were results of guilt pleas before the judges. Juries found two defendants guilty during the year.

No criminal trials resulted in acquittal.

The bulk of the district court docket is tied up in civil cases.

More than 500 such cases were solved without juries and 91 were dismissed for want of prosecution.

Two mistrials were declared in the courts.

Statewide, the 245 district, domestic relations and special juvenile courts experienced less than a 1 per cent increase in filings during 1972 — to 280,971 cases from 278,338 in 1971. Twenty-seven per cent of these were criminal cases.

These state courts disposed of 51 per cent of the total cases filed in 1972 or carried over from 1971. The defendant entered a guilty plea in 47 per cent of the criminal cases disposed of. In the cases disposed of by a jury verdict, 74 per cent of the defendants were found guilty and 26 per cent acquitted.

Of the 276,979 cases pending throughout the state at the end of 1972, 19 per cent had been on the docket 12 to 24 months and 28 per cent had been pending over two years.

For the last 40 years the Texas Civil Judicial Council has been collecting information concerning caseloads for the district and appellate courts. Beginning in 1973, the Council will expand its data collection activities by gathering and publishing statistics on caseloads of county, municipal and justice of the peace courts. These statistics are essential for study and evaluation of the judicial system and its effects on the people of the state.

Arts And Entertainment Through The Looking-Glass

Helen Butler provides the haunting voice of the Dalai-Lama, the peace-loving Buddhist religious leader and one of the world's victims in "Cry Out!," a reader's theatre work to receive its premiere performance Wednesday at WTSU.

By ANN MELIN

The red terror has followed the white terror
And a blue terror will follow the red terror
And a kaleidoscope terror will follow the blue terror
Is it all the same? Is it all the same?

"Cry Out!"

The traumatic aftermath of sudden, senseless violence is the raw material of "Cry Out," a gripping work by author Q'Adrianne Rohke to receive its premiere performance at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in the West Texas University Intimate Theatre.

Although its author calls it a story "of real people, real events," the vehicle for its presentation is neither the on-location newsreel or the ultra-realism of the current cinema. Rather, the stark terror accompanying the assassination of presidents, religious leaders and athletes in our time, is depicted through the agent of the human voice.

The work, described as "an ode to all peoples filled with terror and tragedy," is in performance by participants in the West Texas State University speech department's Reader's Theatre Workshop, in session through Thursday at the school.

Q'Adrianne Rohke is the penname of Dee Libbey of Goodwell, Okla., a music composer and poet whose unusual works have received performance with the Amarillo Symphony, the U.S. Army Field Band at Southern Methodist University and the New York Summer Symphony. Mrs. Libbey is expected to be present for the premier performance of her newest work at WTSU.

Direction of "Cry Out!" is by Gene Murray, choir director at Canyon Junior High School and a participating student in the workshop.

With the intimate theatre in constant service by many of the 1100 participants in the Instrumental Music Camp, rehearsals for the provocative reader's theatre offering have gone on unnoticed in a classroom on the third floor of the University Complex South.

With the culmination of the band camp, reader's theatre activities will move back into the Fine Arts Building this week, said Dr. Zell SoRelle, director of the three-week workshop.

The impressive gallery of characters in "Cry-Out!" includes Iona Totha, the medical student hung for the murder of a secret policeman during the 1957 Hungarian Revolt; the Dalai-Lama, Buddhist god-king forced to flee Tibet during the large-scale revolt against Chinese troops; President John F. Kennedy; the voices of 99 paratroopers slain on Hill 875 in the Battle of Dakto in the Vietnam war; civil rights leader Rev. Martin Luther King; Kevin Patrick Moran, killed by a policeman's bullet while trying to extinguish the blazing Bank of America, ignited by protesting California students; a Jewish youth among the victims in the slayings at the 1973 Olympiad at Munich, and the voices of Henry Ford, Socrates, Jesus, Buddha and an unnamed child.

All of the leading characters share the commonality of being victims of senseless violence, whether on the streets of Dallas, the jungles of Vietnam or the mountains of Tibet. Their "crying out" against the continuation of such atrocities forms the substance of the Oklahoma author's work.

Performance is through speech and movement. Visually the show is interesting in that readers portraying the victimized characters bear no remote physical resemblance to the victimized characters. A white man portrays a black man. A girl portrays a Jewish boy. No makeup, no lavish costumes, no intricate props. Just voices.

According to Dr. SoRelle, the dramatic technique of reader's theatre is one of the oldest known, its use being employed by the blind poet Homer and other Greek dramatists.

Readers theatre is concerned with the education of the human being as an expressive agent for the performance of texts of many kinds. It is a presentational form of the printed word for group performance, said Dr. SoRelle.

The objective of the workshop, she said, is to demonstrate to the elementary, secondary and college teacher the possibilities for the use of reader's theatre as a technique in education.

The cast in "Cry Out!" includes Imogene Wilkinson, Teresa Hunt, Rodger Wilson, James Hinkly, Bill Jordan, Helen Butler, Neva Chowning, Pat Doyle, Sheila O'Keefe, J. Scott Glenn and Bebe Terrill.

There is no admission for the Wednesday performance.

Scheduled to view "TEXAS" and take a backstage tour of the Paul Green outdoor drama on Aug. 9 is a 45-member group from Oklahoma, representing drama directors, educators and community theatre enthusiasts from all over the state.

The group will leave Oklahoma on that day and view the show in the evening, said William A. Moore, director. Their itinerary includes trips to other outstanding Southwestern theatre centers in New Mexico.

Moore invited all Canyon residents active in community theatre to come out to the show that evening and help host the group.

Panhandle artists, craftsmen and musicians will have the opportunity to display their talents when the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce presents its first annual Hullabaloo, a summer arts festival in "the Old West spirit" to be held Aug. 18 - 19 at Ellwood Park.

Highlights include an evening performance by the Amarillo Symphony under the direction of Dr. Thomas Hohstadt, as well as a square dance demonstration.

The all-day event will feature continuous live entertainment by area musicians, as well as exhibits and sales of works by regional artists.

Western dress is encouraged for the festivities.

Entry forms are available at the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce. These should be returned by no later than Wednesday, a spokesman said.

Paperback Collections A Promising Beginning

Some 200 paperback books were collected Thursday night in the Canyon Library Board's porchlight pickup campaign in which civic club members aided in making collections throughout the city.

Dr. Myron Dees, Canyon Library Board representative, described the campaign as a "promising start," but said he hoped that more paperbacks will be donated in the next week.

He said that many of the lighted porches approached were not intended as signals to the book collectors, but that in several of these residences, people went ahead and "turned up a few paperbacks to donate, anyway."

Those wishing to contribute books to the collection may still do so by bringing their donations to Room 110 of the West Texas State University Activities Center during opening hours on Monday and Tuesday. Persons may also make their contributions at the City Library, which is open from 10 a.m. to noon and 1 - 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Clubs aiding in the drive were the Evening and Noon Lion's Clubs, the Kiwanis Club, and the Rotary Club.

Books collected will be housed in the Canyon Library, which will serve as a central distribution point from which members of several of the city's women's organizations will distribute the books to such institutions as the hospital, rest home and county jail, in which institutionalized persons do not have a continuous diet of varied reading matter, said Dr. Dees.

He sees the paperback collection as providing a needed public service for the city.

Cast 'Originals' Will Be Aug. 7

Cast members of the musical-drama "TEXAS" have begun work on "TEXAS" Originals, which will be aired Aug. 7.

An evening of drama and dance, and an art exhibit, "TEXAS" Originals is planned, prepared and presented by members of the cast.

The one-night performance is an annual event to raise money for scholarships for members of the "TEXAS" company and has helped many students through the years.

On the program this year will be original dances, a play by French dramatist Moliere directed by technical director Nick Reid, and music especially composed for the occasion by Steve Hilton and Mike Raillard.

The presentation will be at 8 p.m. in the Branding Iron Theatre on the campus of West Texas State University. No admission is charged but donations will be gratefully received, according to Mrs. Margaret Harper, publicity director.

Had a party? Or giving one? Tell The Canyon News about it. Telephone 655-7121, or stop by the News office on the south side of the square.

Swanson described the clientele of the Mini-Vue as "not a bunch of dirty old men," but rather predominately businessmen, about 30-35 years of age. He estimated that about 60% of the customers were married men.

"They come in, a lot of them, in suit and tie, to have a 'night out' with their friends. On weekends, we have a lot of married couples come in," Swanson said.

He added that he has seen no unaccompanied female enter the establishment since he has been employed there.

The profits of the Mini-Vue, Swanson said, are "very good."

"The owners run this place like any other business. By the law of supply and demand. About 20 years ago, I believe people would have patronized a place like the Mini-Vue if they could have done so undetected.

"But with the change in sex attitudes in recent years, as people became more candid about sex, some businessmen could see that a place showing adult films had a chance to make a profit. The business grew because it was very profitable. If the Mini-Vue didn't have customers, it wouldn't still be in business."

Swanson said that in such a business, publicity of any kind, adverse or favorable, hurts business because of the attention it attracts. Newspaper ads are small and unobtrusive, giving only the theatre name and hours, so that interested persons will know about the establishment.

The theatre is organized as a private club, with customers paying $5 for their first viewing, and $3.50 per matinee thereafter. Featured entertainment consists of two hour-length films, Swanson said.

The vast majority of customers are regular card-carrying members, he said. Although the film house sets an 18-year-old age limit on attendance, Swanson said that very few come in who are under age 21. College students who attend the matinees, he said, usually do so as a "lark." He added that the high admission charged keeps most college-age movie-goers away.

Swanson is the son of a former Dalhart feedlot manager now operating in Imperial Valley, California. The student said that his parents were "not very well-to-do," and that most of his college education has been financed through his work at the adult theatre.

"When I told my parents I was going to work at the place they told me it was my life and it was okay if that was what I wanted to do. I told them I thought it was what I had to do.

"My parents haven't chastized me for what I'm doing. They've always told us what was right and wrong, and counselled us on our problems. But if we went out and did the wrong thing, they figured it was just something we'd have to reconcile with ourselves."

One of Swanson's greatest interests has been business entrepeneurial ventures. At age 19, he attempted to create a maid-service for dorm students, as well as a University Book Exchange which he estimated would, in theory, provide students with textbooks at a cost of about $10-$15 rather than the average $50 per semester. Both of his early business experiments failed to work out, he said. But his ambition is still to "shape" his own business.

Although he said that the era of rugged individualism that fostered men like Henry Ford is past, prospects of ascending from "rags to riches" are still available. Recently, he has closely examined "service" companies, which deal in services rather than commodities. He says these are the up-and-coming companies of the future.

Swanson said that the men in his family have been "cowboys on both my mother and dad's side.

"When I was 13 years old, I remember my dad telling me he hoped he never caught me in cowboy boots and hat again. He said that life as a cowhand wasn't for me. He thought I was meant to do something bigger," Swanson said.

He added that his work at the Mini-Vue is intended as a temporary job until he gets out of WTSU. After completing his studies there, he plans to attend Texas Tech School of Law.

Asked whether the adult films may contribute to an increase in lax morality and sex crimes, Swanson theorized their showing may have the opposite effect.

"I'd guess the people who come to the theatre do so for entertainment. After the show, they probably just go home, maybe satisfied," said Swanson.

US Club Opens Year, Plans Home Tour

Anticipating the University Study Club's annual fund raising project set for October 14, are Mrs. John Womack, Home Tour committee chairman, and Mrs. Myron Dees, club president, trying out one of the signs to be used.

One of three federated senior women's study clubs organized in Canyon in the Top of Texas district is featured, University Study Club, with Mrs. Myron Dees presiding as president for 1973-1974.

With a membership ceiling of 45, current actives total 43 with five associates and two honorary members. This year's club theme is "Colors For Living" with a program scheduled for monthly meetings beginning in September and led by a variety of speakers from the community.

Program and yearbook committee members include Mrs. Bob Lindsey, Mrs. Tom McClure, Mrs. John Childs, Mrs. Hugh Sanders and Mrs. Kenneth Laycock.

Among many service projects, the club sponsors one fund raising event which has been the Home Tour for many years. The Home Tour has been scheduled for Oct. 14 and tickets will be sold for $1 each by club members beginning in September. Proceeds will be contributed toward community projects as done in the past. Five including one remodeled, one that has been on a previous tour but has changed ownership, and three new homes have been listed for the tour.

Involved in organizing this year's Home Tour, are committee members Mrs. Jozach Byrd, Mrs. Bob Brotherton, Mrs. Gary Garner, Mrs. Nolon Henson, Mrs. Duane Howard, Mrs. Gilbert Irlbeck, headed by chairman, Mrs. John Womack.

Organized in May, 1953, the Junior Woman's Book Club, changing in 1964 to the University Study Club, became federated on Nov. 8, 1954, choosing the yellow rose for its flower and the club colors of yellow and white.

Last year, the club's yearbook won the first place ribbon in state competition and two women were honored as outstanding club women in the Top of Texas District.

Throughout the club year, members are involved in a variety of community projects using fund-raising project monies and time to support the Reen Stevenson Memorial Scholarship, the Reen Stevenson Fund of the Canyon Division of the Opportunity Plan, Inc., a museum auxiliary for the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum, Canyon Girl Scouts, Canyon City Library Association, Camp Wigwam, Canyon Babe Ruth League, Canyon City Council of Federated Women projects, honor deserving teachers in the Canyon ISD during American Education Week.

Also, distributing "TEXAS" folders during individual travels, cooperating with the Canyon City Library's used book drive, assisting in various ways at the LaCasa Convalescent and Nursing Home, selection of the Canyon Citizen of the year, sponsoring a queen candidate and booth at the Canyon Study Club annual Halloween Carnival, supporting national drives, contributing to Meals on Wheels, participating in local, state and national polling.

Federation projects which are funded only through the club's budget include contributing to Girlstown, U.S.A., the Wichita Falls Mental Hospital at Christmas, GFWC special projects, Texas Big Thicket project, CARE, T. Anchor Ranch House, Lola B. Mundy Scholarship Fund, Penny Art, Musical Penny and Latin American Scholarship Funds.

Last year the Reen Stevenson Memorial Scholarship in the amount of $150 to be used at WTSU was awarded to Miss Diana Wilhite. Each year the award goes to a Canyon High School senior girl who "is deserving," said the club president.

A special community project in its second year of existence, sponsored and sustained by the University Study Club, is the Panhandle Plains Historical Museum Auxiliary with a membership open to the Golden Spread. According to auxiliary public relations and historian officer and University Study Club member, Mrs. Sam Jolly, "the auxiliary is a volunteer group separate and apart from any other . . . the membership now stands at 45 with 1/3 or more being University Study Club members."

Officers of the auxiliary and members of the University Study Club are president, Mrs. Wayne Wirt; first vice president, Mrs. Dudley Moore; second vice president, Mr. T.G. Hull; secretary, Mrs. Harold Erwin; treasurer, Mrs. Charles Smallwood; parliamentarian, Mrs. Nolan Henson; public relations and historian, Mrs. Sam Jolly.

For her involvement in the museum project, last year's University Study Club president, Mrs. Wirt, won "Woman of the Year" award in the Top of Texas Federated Women's Clubs District.

Shelly Carroll-What It Takes To Be

Time, determination and patience are of the essence in the case of Miss Shelly Carroll whose life has drastically changed since her motorcycle accident on March 18 of this year.

Shelly was racing in a powder puff event that day being held in a small canyon near Dumas when her cycle hit sand and threw her falling 15 feet into a ravine. The accident left the young cyclist with a broken neck and spinal cord injuries. In medical terminology, she is a quadraplegic, having no use of arms or legs.

She was hospitalized at Northwest Texas Hospital following the mishap for about two months then went home for about a month. The past five weeks, Shelly has been involved in a rehabilitation program sponsored by the Good Samaritan Hospital in Phoenix, Ariz. During this time she has been relearning what so many take for granted — things like putting on make up, hitting a volleyball, pushing a wheelchair.

But she does have something that many of us don't have or even think about — an indomitable spirit not born overnight but emerging from fourteen years of loving life and now coping vigorously with handicaps.

From the doctors' standpoint, Shelly's recovery from arm and leg paralysis is not probable, but possible. However, since the rehabilitation treatments that she has received at the Phoenix hospital, the young lady has regained a small amount of feeling down one side of her arms, can feel when someone touches her toes and has developed a method of pushing with her wrists. But the largest percentage of recovery has been in herself — the will to lead a productive life that no barrier, no matter how threatening or frustrating, has been able to keep her from going anywhere but straight ahead.

Shelly is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Carroll, who reside in the Gene Howe district. She has a younger sister and brother, Dee Dee, age 12 and Kevin, age 10. Her father is employed by Santa Fe and her mother owns Bo Ra's Boutique in Amarillo.

An eighth grader last year at Canyon Junior High and involved in the eighth grade girls choir and representative from her grade to the student council, Shelly plans to return as a freshman this year after six more weeks at the Good Samaritan Hospital of supervised physical and occupational therapy from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. every day with an hour off for lunch. She is also a member of the Southwest Church of Christ in Amarillo.

Until five weeks ago Shelly claims that she had little wheelchair activity, but now she's up and active during a regular day's time. "Right now, the thing I want to be able to do the most is getting to and from my chair by myself. When I can dress and transfer myself — that'll be O.K.," said Shelly.

The day of the accident, Shelly was trying to win the first place trophy in her event. Although she missed the coveted award, another was presented to her by a friend of her fathers with a model size motorcycle and "World's Prettiest Cliff Jumper" inscribed on it. This trophy has been one of many concerned gestures towards Shelly. Collected in a pink piggy bank, Canyon Junior High raised $189 for their fellow student. The Hairdressers of Amarillo sponsored a bingo party, donating about $400 of the proceeds for Shelly's expenses. Other contributions have come from all over the area. Recently, a Shelly Carroll fund has been set up by friends at the Tascosa National Bank in Amarillo to centralize donations.

The Carrolls are building a special room and bathroom to meet the needs of their daughter. Other devices that will aid Shelly are two arm splints, costing $350 each, that are made to assist with hand and finger manipulation. Other items necessary to her educational activities are an IBM electric typewriter and an electric wheelchair, the wheelchair amounting to $1,100 - $1,200, for easy movement around the carpeted school. This is in addition to a standard wheelchair, costing around $600.

"It takes a lot of teamwork," said Mrs. Carroll speaking of Shelly's efforts to rehabilitate and the things that the entire family have been learning to help in a constructive way.

Through a six week siege in an intensive care unit to the present with every day bringing new accomplishments and more challenges, "God and my friends have been the biggest help," claims Shelly.

Hostesses included Mesdames Jim Boyce, Verona Collier, Dwight Davis, Ric Edmondson, John Hare, Louis G. Hinders, Sam Jolly, Delmer Loven, Earl Miller, Mitch Newkirk, Ross Russell, Brian Snyder and Hollice Snyder.

Approximately forty guests from Canyon and the surrounding area attended the event.

Also, the future bride was honored July 22, 1973, with a linen and lingerie shower at the home of Miss Sharon Nickell, 2400 11th Avenue. Other hostesses included Miss Terri Crawford, Miss LeAnn Schickendanz and Mrs. Marla Shadix, all of Canyon.

Fifteen of the bride's closest friends attended the affair.

Marriage Solemnized

Marriage vows were solemnized at 3 p.m., July 21, 1973, by Miss Sheila Allison Sampson, 1011 South Congress, Austin, and Robert Courtney Olsen, 3233 Mangum Road, Houston, during a double ring ceremony held at the St. Austin Catholic Church, Austin. Father Michael Everend officiated at the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Sampson, 1011 South Congress, Austin, are parents of the bride.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Olsen, 506 Taylor Lane, Canyon.

Organist, Neil Cowley, performed a variety of wedding music selections ranging from quiet to jubilant ones. The couple left the church to the strains of Bach's Easter Sequence.

Urns of white mums and greenery flanking the candlelit altar decorated the church.

Mrs. Kirk Downing, of Austin and sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids included Misses Sharon Taylor, Beeville, and Melissa Johnson, of Houston, and cousin of the bride. The bridal attendants were attired in princess gowns of natural muslin featuring full sleeves and bodices of powder blue voile trimmed in blue and ecru braid. They carried bouquets of color-mixed folowers accented with blue streamers.

Serving as best man was Michael Dabney, Austin. Groomsmen included Jack Morrow, Corpus Christi, and Lee Lott, Austin. Ushering guests were Bob Gruner, Canyon, and Jim Sampson, Austin and brother of the bride.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of candlelight satin featuring a princess silhouette with jewel neckline and organza sleeves. The bodice and sleeves were appliqued with french lace and seed pearls and the train was fashioned with a flounce of lace and pleated organza. The bride's veil of unadorned illusion was attached to a circular flower chain of blossoms and seed pearls. She carried white roses.

The mother of the bride was gowned in lime green chiffon designed with long sleeves and a soft bow at the neck. The groom's mother was attired in a lavender chiffon gown fashioned with long sleeves and a satin belt. Both carried harmonizing orchid corsages.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at Green Pastures, a former colonial residence and ranch in Austin, with many friends attending. The bride's table was centered with a three tiered wedding cake decorated with flower petals. The groom's cake was chocolate mocha made in the shape of a heart.

Following a wedding trip to the Bahamas, the couple will reside at 3233 Mangum Road.

Presently a senior student at the University of Houston, the bride attended the University of Texas during her freshman and sophomore years where she was a member of Sigma Iota Epsilon, honorary management fraternity.

The bridegroom graduated from Canyon High School in 1968 and is a mechanical engineer graduate from the University of Texas where he was a member of Phi Kappa Tau, social fraternity, Tau Beta Pi and Phi Kappa Phi, scholastic honorary fraternities.

All Around The House

By BECKY HALL

With end-of-summer parties underway, "weiner roasts" are fun — and appropriate outdoor activities.

The frankfurter plays a major role in these cookouts — and its contents affect the flavor. Thus, the shopper needs to know what to look for.

The label is the consumer's guide in buying frankfurters — there are no secrets in a hot dog. Everything that goes into them is inspected and regulated according to federal standards.

Shoppers should read labels on product packages and compare them.

For example, if the label states "all meat," the franks contain skeletal muscle tissue — the same as steaks, chops or roasts. If a product utilizes tripe, heart, lips, beef cheeks or other parts, they must be specifically listed on the label.

A label also must indicate if poultry meat is a constituent of the frank. If so, it's limited by law to less than 15 per cent.

Law also limits certain other ingredients.

For example, a certain amount of fat is needed for good flavor, but the content is held to 30 per cent. Taste tests at Iowa State University consistently show that franks containing less than 15 per cent fat are rated barely edible.

Chemicals, including nitrates and nitrites, which are added to products have received much attention lately. Actually, nitrates and nitrites are the oldest meat preservatives known — they've been used since cave-man days.

Sodium ascorbate or sodium erythorbate are added to speed up the curing rate. These salts of ascorbic acid (vitamin C) sometimes are listed on the label.

In order to keep the meat in a tubular shape, a binder such as cereal or soy protein is included. However, this is limited to three per cent.

Water also is added — in the form of ice — to keep the meat cool. This is also regulated, and most is lost during cooking and smoking.

Local Student Makes Honor Roll

A Canyon student at the University of Texas, Miss Kay Nester, has been named to the spring semester honor roll of the School of Communication.

Mrs. Nester, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Nester of east of Canyon, is one of 270 students named to the roll.

To be eligible for the honor roll, a student must have completed 15 or more graded semester hours with a grade-point average of at least 3.0 on a 4-point scale.

London-Maxwell Perform Nuptials

Miss Linda London and Danny Ray Maxwell, both of Amarillo, were joined in matrimony during a double ring ceremony held at 7:30 p.m., July 6, 1973 at St. Paul's Methodist Church of Amarillo. Dr. Clifford Trotter officiated during the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Weaver, 904 Heather, Amarillo, are parents of the bride.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray B. Maxwell, 8122 Western, Amarillo.

The wedding march was played by pianist, Mrs. Everet Cox. Soloist, Joe Joiner, performed With Hand in Hand.

Church decorations consisted of two seven branch candelabras, with blue carnations and green foliage. A large bouquet of white gladiolas and mums were displayed between two white candles.

Bridesmaid was Vada Weaver, of Muscogee, Okla., and sister-in-law of the bride. She was dressed in a formal length dark blue gown and carried a bouquet of field flowers tied with dark blue ribbon.

Charles Batenhorst, Canyon, was best man. Ushering guests and candlelighters were Jeff Maxwell and Rick Maxwell, brothers of the groom.

Mrs. Danny Ray Maxwell nee Linda London

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of blue sheer nylon over blue satin. Bands featured on the long full sleeves and stand up collar were edged in white velvet ribbon and lace as was the embroidered empire waistline. The bride's veil was short and white with the headpiece embroidered in white pearls. She carried a bouquet of field flowers with long light blue ribbons.

A reception followed the ceremony in the church parlor. The bride's table was laid with white net caught at the corners with blue carnations. It was decorated with a three tiered wedding cake in the center featuring blue candles on each side. The cake and punch were served by Patricia Maxwell, Mamie Palmer and Kenda Statser.

The newlyweds are living at 3600 N.E. 23rd, Amarillo.

The bride graduated from Palo Duro High School and is presently employed by Levi Strauss Co.

The groom is a Canyon High School graduate. He is employed by Furrs Food, Inc.
